Editor's Preface

David D. Roberts assembled this Book of Remembrance to preserve the history, faith, migrations, relationships, and records of his family. His work brought together family manuscripts, letters, church publications, recollections, photographs, and records that might otherwise have been separated or lost. This edition treats that achievement with gratitude and respect.

The original compiler worked with the evidence and translations available to him. Later access to the Welsh journal, the Robert D. Roberts English record, grave and cemetery evidence, family correspondence, and other documentary sources now permits some statements to be corrected, clarified, or enlarged. Those later findings are never silently substituted for the compiler's account. The historical compilation remains the base layer; modern editorial work appears separately and is labeled.

This first-pass draft establishes the complete editorial and section scaffold and completes the new edition's front matter. It also annotates the securely readable title, arrangement, source conventions, and selected front-matter claims. The family narrative beginning with Section A has not yet been rebuilt in this draft. That boundary is intentional: the surviving book contains 310 PDF pages, while the repository's established searchable extraction currently covers only PDF pages 1-68. Later sections require sequential source-image review before clean text can be responsibly published.

How to Use This Edition

Historical base text

Text labeled Original compilation represents what David D. Roberts recorded. Readable historical spelling and source-specific names are retained when they carry evidentiary value. Obvious mechanical inconsistencies may be regularized for reading only when the source is secure.

Editorial categories

Editor's correction identifies a claim for which stronger evidence supports a different reading.

Editor's clarification distinguishes people, names, places, dates, or source layers that the original wording could leave ambiguous.

Editor's note supplies concise historical or documentary context without changing the compiler's claim.

Evidence note identifies the source basis for a correction or clarification.

Uncertainty

Conflicting evidence is preserved. The terms confirmed, probable, possible, and unresolved describe the strength of an editorial conclusion; they do not erase the original statement. Missing or damaged source text is not reconstructed from a later retelling.

Images

This draft contains placeholders only. Each placeholder identifies a subject, intended caption, and suggested provenance field. No replacement or synthetic image has been inserted.

Principal Source Layers

1. The original Book of Remembrance, used as the base text and structure.
2. The David Roberts Welsh/shared journal and its modern English translation.
3. The Robert D. Roberts English family record and historical parallel text.
4. Grave, cemetery, and burial evidence already assembled in the project.
5. Family correspondence and documentary notes.
6. Ffestiniog branch and related Welsh Latter-day Saint evidence when independently relevant.
7. Secondary research aids, used as leads rather than final proof.

Original Compiler and Editorial Responsibility

The repository identifies the compiler as David D. Roberts, son of Robert D. Roberts and known in family context as "The Judge." The historical book itself commonly presents his name as David R. Roberts. Both forms are retained because the source form and canonical family identification answer different questions.

The compiler did not know Welsh and did not visit Wales. That context helps explain why he depended upon family translations, copied records, and information available through others. It is not a criticism of his care or purpose. Modern editorial corrections are benefits of later access, not judgments upon the original work.

Original Compiler's Front Matter

Original Title

Original compilation

Book of Remembrance of David and Catherine (uch Thomas ap Richard) Roberts, natives of Llanfrothen, Merionethshire, Wales, and their family.

Editor's clarification

The title and arrangement establish a multi-branch family record rather than a biography of one person. This edition preserves the complete A-L plan even though only the front matter is rebuilt in this draft.

Dedication

Source condition note

The surviving dedication scan begins in the middle of a sentence. The missing opening is not supplied. The readable portion emphasizes the compiler's wish that descendants know the faith, pioneering work, and family example of their forebears and preserve their history as a united record.

Original compilation - secure excerpts

If a family is to live in the earth as a distinctive entity, it must write and preserve its history - the record of its individual members, and its branches - of their experiences and of the dealings of God with them.

I feel an irresistible urge to perform this service of making available to posterity the records of our fathers and mothers.

Editor's note

These statements explain the compiler's method and tone. The annotated edition retains that family-centered purpose while separating later evidence from his historical voice.

- Subject: David D. Roberts, compiler of the Book of Remembrance
- Intended caption: David D. Roberts, compiler of the Roberts family Book of Remembrance.
- Suggested source/provenance: Roberts family photograph collection; exact image and date to be selected later.
- Editorial note: Confirm the sitter and date before insertion; do not substitute a different David Roberts.

Preface

Original compilation - summary of the readable source

The compiler presents record keeping as a religious and family duty. He describes the earlier records kept by his grandfather David Roberts and his father Robert D. Roberts, explains his own effort to preserve and organize them, and asks descendants to continue the record. He also describes acquiring records, photographs, family-group information, and other materials over many years.

Editor's note

The preface is an important provenance statement. It shows that the Book of Remembrance is itself a compilation from multiple earlier witnesses. Quotations copied into the book must therefore be compared with the surviving Welsh and English journals when exact wording, dates, or names matter.

Explanatory Notes and Source Abbreviations

Original compilation

The compiler explains that his grandfather David Roberts and father Robert D. Roberts both kept record books. He intended to preserve original material and marked copied passages with abbreviations. Securely readable abbreviations include:

- D. Rec. - record of David Roberts.
- R. Rec. - record of Robert D. Roberts.
- R. MS. - manuscripts of Robert D. Roberts.
- R. L. - copies of letters of Robert D. Roberts.
- D. N. - Deseret News.
- J. H. with a date - Journal History.
- B. M. with a date - British Mission record.
- M. S. with volume and page - Millennial Star.
- C. S. - church emigration or ship passenger register.
- H. O. - Historian's Office of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Editor's clarification

These abbreviations identify the cited source category, but do not always establish that a surviving quotation is verbatim. This edition will compare copied passages with an extant journal or publication where available.

The Name "David R. Roberts"

Original compilation

The compiler states that his grandfather was recorded as David Roberts in Wales, including the Ffestiniog branch record and Welsh Latter-day Saint hymnbook. He proposes that David added the middle initial R after reaching Utah, perhaps to distinguish himself from other men named David Roberts aboard the S. Curling.

Editor's correction

The proposed timing is not fully established by the now-available signed evidence. The shared journal contains directly attributable signatures David R Roberts dated February 4 and April 6, 1858. They confirm his use of that form in Utah before his death on November 4, 1858, but do not establish exactly when or why he adopted it. The passenger explanation remains a family interpretation rather than a proven reason.

Evidence note

- David Roberts shared journal, PDF page 73, signed entry dated February 4, 1858.
- David Roberts shared journal, PDF page 76, two signed records dated April 6, 1858.
- Book of Remembrance, source PDF page 3, compiler's explanatory note.

The Hymn Initials "D. R."

Original compilation

The compiler identifies D. R. in the Welsh Latter-day Saint hymnbook with David Roberts.

Editor's clarification

The journal independently establishes David Roberts's strong poetic interest and bardic instruction. It does not directly identify the 1852 hymn, and the damaged verse on journal page 69 has not been connected to that hymn. The attribution remains a focused research question requiring comparison of the hymn text, printed attribution, genealogy-book text, and independent evidence.

Rebuild status

Not yet rebuilt in this first-pass draft. The next sequential pass begins here, using the original book as base and the completed Welsh/shared journal as a comparison witness.

[IMAGE PLACEHOLDER - ancestral locality map]

- Subject: Llanfrothen, Ffestiniog, Beddgelert, Clynog, and associated family localities
- Intended caption: Principal north Wales localities appearing in the early Roberts family record.
- Suggested source/provenance: Later map prepared from verified place identifications; cartographic source to be recorded.
- Editorial note: Do not infer an ancestral residence solely from a nearby place-name occurrence.

Planned correction and clarification areas

- Robert Price / Roberts surname-transition evidence.
- David Roberts birth-date conflict: Welsh manuscript April 5, 1814; RDR April 14; signed 1858 account gives April 6.
- Exact historical Welsh name and place forms.
- Conversion, baptism, branch leadership, migration, and handcart chronology.
- Grave inscriptions, burial evidence, and corrected death dates.
- Distinction between original writing, historical translation/copy, and later synthesis.

Section B - Robert D. and Hannah (Roberts) Roberts and Family

Status: scaffold only; not yet rebuilt.

- Subject: Robert D. and Hannah (Roberts) Roberts family
- Intended caption: Robert D. and Hannah (Roberts) Roberts and family.
- Suggested source/provenance: Roberts family photograph collection; identities and date to be verified.

Section C - Robert D. and Eliza (Neagle) Roberts and Family

Status: scaffold only; not yet rebuilt.

Section D - Thomas D. and Margaret G. (Davis) Roberts and Family

Status: scaffold only; not yet rebuilt.

Section E - Daniel and Sarah A. (Hughes) Roberts and Family

Status: scaffold only; not yet rebuilt.

Section F - William T. and Ann (Roberts) Hopkins and Family

Status: scaffold only; not yet rebuilt.

The historical text below preserves the Book of Remembrance wording and translation choices. It is not the project's modern English translation from the Welsh manuscript.

Original compiler introduction

It is most appropriate that this record should begin with a recital of the earliest writings known in the family, namely, the writings of Grandfather, David Roberts. His record book is in my possession, it having been given into my care by my father, Robert D. Roberts. It is written in the Welsh language and bears the marks of time. The record consists, in the most part, of poetry, as Grandfather was a poet. There are, however, a few pages of historical and genealogical data which have been translated from the Welsh into the English. The first translation was made by my father many years ago and recently I secured another translation by my friend, Mr. John Thomas of Ogden, Utah. I acted as scribe. I have compared the translations and they agree throughout. I am sure that the translation is very accurate, giving not only the letter and meaning but also the spirit of the original. The notes in brackets are inserted by me, by way of explanation. I have also inserted the headings.

(The translation is as follows:)

Historical English layer: "My Line of Descent"

"January 9, 1854." - David Roberts

"Following is a record of some of my family as I have been able to get them. I was born in the year 1814, on April 6th, in Meirionethshire, in Nanmor, in a house called Fron Wen (White Hillside) on the estate of the celebrated bard, David Nanmor. The place is now taxed with Beddgelert (Gelert's grave) in Carnarvonshire.

"There were born to my parents eight children. Their names are as follows, placing the oldest first: Robert (who died when three months old), Edward, Robert, Elinor, David (himself), William, Daniel and John. The first five were born in Fron Wen, the next two in Bryn-y-sgybor (Hill with the barn), and the last, namely, John, in Lletty, (all) in Llanfrothan Parish.

"Edward was married to Elinor Griffith, daughter of Griffith and Catherine Williams of Bron-y-berllon (Hill orchard) in Llanfrothan. Robert was married in Llanfrothan to Gwen, daughter of William and Mary Williams Cae-Glas (Green Field), Llanfrothan. To him were born twelve children.

"Elinor was married to John, son of William Humphreys and Catherine James of the parish of Festiniog. There were born to them nine children. They immigrated to America.

"I, David, was married in Llanfrothan to Catherine, daughter of Thomas Richard and Ann Morris of Creua Mawr (Large Crag) Llanfrothan. There were born to us six children. The oldest, Robert, Thomas, Daniel, Ann, Elizabeth and Jane Roberts.

"William was married in Festiniog to Margaret, daughter of Evan Roberts and Jane Griffith, Glan-y-Pwll-Bach (near the small pool). There were four children born to them, namely, Elizabeth, Robert, Evan and William Roberts, the youngest, who died as a babe.

"Daniel was married in Llanfrothan to Gwen, daughter of John Lloyd and Catherine Jones of Caer Llwynog (Box Castle or Den) Llanfrothan. There were born to them four children as follows: Catherine, Elizabeth, William and John Roberts.

"John, the youngest of us, married Mary, daughter of Edward Richards, a slater (one who made slates) of Festiniog, and Mary Owens, Festiniog. The present number of their children is three. I presume the number will soon be changed. Their names are as follows: Elizabeth, Sydney and William Daniel Roberts." (Later a son named Robert Edward Roberts was born).

"My oldest brother, Robert, (infant) was buried in Beddgelert (Grave of Gelert) (Carnarvonshire) cemetery.

"Edward is a shoemaker by trade and is now living in Gelli Cornwydydd (Place of Carbuncles) in Llanfrothan and my father lives with him. He does not belong to any religious sect or belief but he and his wife are listeners in the Baptist Church (Scotch).

"Robert (Second) lives in Erw-Fawr (large acre Farm) Llanfrothan. He is the third son of my father. He has buried four of his children. (The names of their children are here inserted in my father's translation as follows: "Rhys, Mary, Elinor, Elizabeth, Ellis, Myric, William, Samuel, Daniel and Gwen Roberts." He is a slate quarryman. He is a member of the Calvinistic Methodist Church and is bringing up his children carefully in the same faith.

"Elinor is now in America, I presume in the State of Vermont. The names of her children are as follows: Robert, Catherine, William, John, David and Sydney (Humphreys), who (Sydney) died and was buried in Festiniog. She was very beautiful and lovely and I composed the following epitaph to her:

"Beautiful Rose of the garden eternal,

Cut at dawn by death.

"Ebenezer and James Henry Humphreys were born in America, and I am not sure whether or not they also belong to the Calvinistic-Methodists.

"Daniel died in America. (He was buried at Worthing Landing in Kentucky, U.S.A., in 1850 while migrating to Zion.)

"Now I will give a little of my own history."

Early life, education, and poetry

"I was brought up in the midst of great poverty. The wages of the common laborer was my father's wage, which, for many years was from one shilling to one shilling and six pence in a day and board himself which, usually was not enough to get bread for the family. My tasks, until I was eleven years old, were to collect kindling wood, also to gather moss from rocks for dyeing purposes, also to peel oak bark and cut it into pieces about six inches long and similar tasks - everything in its season.

"I was very sick with fever when I was ten or eleven years old and soon after getting well I went to the quarry at Festiniog with my father and brother Robert to work. I followed the job of working slates under many disadvantages until I was fifteen or sixteen years old. At this time I went to a place named Caeunest (Field Nest) at the head of the Valley of Ardydwy to serve on the farm of a man by the name of William Pugh where I remained about a year and a half. Then I returned to the quarry and from then until now, I have followed one or the other of the occupations at the quarry.

"No one thought, that I know of, that I needed any public schooling, at least I did not receive any. My parents sent me to Sunday School at the Calvinistic-Methodists where I started reading Welsh. My mind was inclined toward the Baptists, consequently it was hard to make me go to the Methodists, but the Baptists did not have a Sunday School. They considered that a sin.

"When I was a boy I greatly wished to become a Bard (poet) and when I was about eighteen years old I studied the rules of poetry. At this time I was lodging at the home of the grandmother of Gwylm Ystradau, (later) the Bard. He also was about of the same age as I and of about the same inclination toward poetry - so we were some encouragement to each other. We became acquainted with old Gwylm Twrog, the Bard, and received some lessons from him."

Marriage, conversion, and family

"Bethania, January 18, 1856."

"I was between twenty-two and twenty-three years old when I got married. I went to live in Lofft-y-Ty-Liaeth (Loft of the Milk House) park, Llanfrothan for the first year. From there we went to Gelli Cornwydydd (Place of Carbuncles) in the same Parish and on the same estate; from Gelli to Llwyn-y-Gell, Parish of Festiniog; from Llwyn-y-Gell to Ddol-y-Garreg Ddu (Black Rock Meadow) in the same Parish; from Ddol-y-Garreg-Ddu to Bethania where I am now. From this place I intend immigrating to America between now and the first of next March.

"I was converted to the faith of the Gospel by Robert Evans, Glan Conway (On Banks of the Conway) and was baptized by him in the River Pandy near Gelli Cornwydydd on the 24th day of May in the year of 1846 and I was confirmed by Able Evans and soon received the Holy Priesthood. On my shoulders was placed the responsible duty of preaching the everlasting Gospel in the fullness of its blessings. A branch of the Church of Jesus Christ, called the Festiniog Branch was entrusted to my care. I had the privilege of lodging in my house many of the servants of Jesus Christ as well as helping them with food and clothing and money to build up the Kingdom of Jesus Christ my Lord.

"Catherine, my wife, was baptized by David Peters, near Rhyd-y-Sarn Factory (Ford of the Waste) Festiniog, August 22, 1847. I baptized our own children. Thomas was baptized Sept. 30, 1849, Daniel Sept. 17, 1850, when he was eight years old; Ann Dec. 28th, 1852 when she was eight years old, and Elizabeth April 9th 1855. Robert has not been baptized altho he believes in the Gospel, and Jane has not been baptized because she is not of responsible age."

His wife's ancestry and his ancestry

"My wife was born in Creua Mawr, Llanfrothan. The name of her father as stated above was Thomas Richard. Her mother's name was Ann Morris. Her father, (Thomas Richard) was raised by his grandfather and grandmother in the Creua. His father's name was Richard (Thomas) and his mother's name was Elizabeth. His grandfather's and grandmother's names were Thomas Williams and Catherine uch Richard. The names of the children of Richard and Elizabeth Thomas are as follows: Thomas Richard, Catherine Richard, Robert Richard, and Jane Richard. The names of the children of Thomas Richard and Ann Morris are as follows: Jane, Catherine (his wife) and Richard Thomas.

"Ann Morris, the wife of Thomas Richard was born in Llwyn yr Hwch (Bush of the Sow) Nanmor. Her father's name was Rowland Morris. Her mother's name was Jane Parry. Rowland (Morris) and Jane Parry's children's names are as follows: Rowland, Janet, Ann (her mother) Elinor and Henry Morris.

"My father's and mother's names are Robert Roberts and Elizabeth Edwards. They were married at Beddgelert on the 3rd day of February in the year 1805. My father was born in Cae Glas (Blue Field) Clynog in Carnarvonshire in the year 1775 on the 18th day of January. Nine children were born to his parents, (Robert Roberts' parents) three sons and six daughters. Their names are as follows: Salmon, Marged, Robert, (his father), Catherine, Jane, Ann, Elinor, Elizabeth and William. My grandfather (Rhys Roberts) was born in Felin Faesog, (Landed Mill) Clynog." (D. Rec.)

(This ends the translation of the record of Grandfather David Roberts.)

April 1814 conflict

- David Roberts Welsh manuscript: April 5, 1814. Primary autobiographical manuscript.
 - Book of Remembrance, page 9: April 6, 1814. Historical family translation.
 - RDR historical English: April 14, 1814. Later historical witness.
 - Achau, page 241: April 6, 1814. High-quality secondary synthesis; source code (B) is visible but its legend is unavailable.

Cae Glas

Page 12: Rhys Tradition and Later Evidence

Original family tradition

"The family of Roberts' were living in the Parish of Clynog, Carnarvonshire, Wales. There were three families of Roberts near each other, likely three brothers. They were by occupation farmers, millers and mill-wrights and highly respected people. They were physically large and well built. Those three farms were named Coch Big, Cae Glas and Felin Faesog." (R.MS.)

"Rhys Roberts and wife, to whom we trace our origin, had nine children. Their names are: Salmon, Margaret, Robert, Catherine, Jane, Ann, Elinor, Elizabeth and William Roberts. Robert, the third child of the family, was the father of David Roberts who was my father."

"I think grandfather's name was Rhys Roberts. He had a family of nine children, viz: Salmon, Margaret, Robert (his grandfather), Catherine, Jane, Ann, Elinor, Elizabeth and William Roberts."

The original compilation preserved the family tradition then available. The phrase "I think" is retained as an important expression of uncertainty.

Will, journal, and Achau comparison

The 1823 will of farmer Robert Roberts of Cae Glas names or provides for Margaret, Anne, Jane, Robert, William, Elizabeth, Eleanor, and Solomon. David Roberts journal page 72 gives the same paternal sibling group but leaves the grandfather unnamed. Achau page 241 identifies Robert Price, miller of Melin Faesog, and Catherine as parents of Robert Roberts of Cae Glas, with Ellin Williams as Robert's wife. It places Rhys Roberts on a separate branch.

- Salmon / Solomon: Will: Solomon, one shilling, relationship unstated. Achau: Solomon. Strong name-form correspondence; probable identity.
- Margaret: Will: daughter, £2. Achau: Margaret. Agreement.
- Robert: Will: son, £2. Achau: Robert; an earlier Robert also appears to have died young. Agreement with added context.
- Catherine: Not named in the will; present in Achau. Absence from a will does not disprove relationship.
- Jane: Will: daughter, £2. Achau: Jane. Agreement.
- Ann / Anne: Will: daughter Anne, £2. Achau: Ann. Agreement.
- Elinor / Eleanor / Ellin: Will: daughter Eleanor, residue and executrix. Achau: Ellin. Agreement by ordinary name-form variation.
- Elizabeth: Will: daughter, £2. Achau: Elizabeth. Agreement.
- William: Will: son, £2. Achau: William. Agreement.

Solomon's one-shilling bequest is noteworthy, but the will gives no reason and none is inferred.

Current editorial conclusion

- The first nine-name group is strongly supported as the family of Robert Roberts of Cae Glas and Ellin Williams.
- The will is primary evidence for residence and explicit relationships.
- The journal is primary evidence for David's father and the sibling group, but leaves the grandfather unnamed.
- Achau provides strong secondary support that Robert Roberts was a son of Robert Price and Catherine.
- The tentative Rhys tradition is contradicted as the best placement for the first child list.
- The original records behind Achau must still be inspected before treating Robert Price as primary-source proven.

The Slate Quarries

"My father, David Roberts, was born April 6th, 1814. When he was eleven years old he was very sick with a fever. When he recovered he went to work with his older brother, Robert, in the slate quarry at Festiniog. When he was about fifteen years old he hired to work on a farm where he remained about a year and a half and then went back to the slate quarries of Festiniog. In the spring of 1844 the family moved to Festiniog parish to a place called Llwyn-y-Gell, which was about six miles from the old home. This was near the slate quarries where father worked, as slater and inspector, so that father could be at home daily after his work was done. At this place Thomas attended school, in the winter for a short time, and helped in the quarries, when old enough, during the other portions of the year. From this place the family moved to a place in the same Parish called Ddol-y-gareg-ddu where they lived for some time then moved to Bethania, from which place they moved to America, to Salt Lake City, Utah."

The Eisteddfod - A Story

(Some years ago I requested my father, Robert D. Roberts, to write some facts which he had told me about grandfather that had not been recorded. In a manuscript he writes of the wonderful Welsh custom of the Eisteddfod of the town, city district and national Eisteddfodau. They were great events in the lives of the people - great public competitions in literary productions, in music and oratory, and in all other lines of human activity, for amusement, entertainment and educational purposes. He mentions also the periodical competitions and exhibitions (fairs) in agriculture, horticulture, animal industry and in mechanical and other productions representing the ingenuity and mind of man) "to show our ability to improve in all worthy enterprises". (R.M.S.)

"These competitions or Eisteddfodau were held for various periods of time from one evening or day to several days. It was a custom that at the first session of an [continues on source PDF page 13]."

Edition scope and reserved compiler biography

The shared edition covers Welsh ancestry, David and Chathreina/Catherine Roberts, migration, Robert D. Roberts, major family context, and a concise future biography of David D. Roberts. A later immediate-family extension will cover Thomas Roberts, Wendell Roberts, later descendants, and sibling-focused photographs/documents without duplicating this core.
